A THEATRE IN EDUCATION PROGRAMME FOR YEARS 6 AND 7 ON MEDIA LITERACY FOR CHILDREN AND PARENTS

"As part of our three-year media literacy strategy, we have committed to working with communities to make sure that everyone has the essential skills they need to navigate content safely and flourish online. In East Birmingham we are pleased to be working with Loudmouth and Connect Futures to trial innovative approaches to improve the media literacy of children, young people and their parents."

- Claire Levens, Head of Media Literacy Policy. Ofcom

Loudmouth are working with Ofcom to create a media literacy education programme for children, young people and parents. The new programme, Screen Time, will follow Mia and her Dad as they try to puzzle out questions such as...

- How do we know what we can trust on our screens?
- How can we stay safe in our screen time?
- How do we interact with our screens in productive, kind and respectful ways?
- How can parents and children help each other to enjoy and manage their screen time?

Fake News? Mis and Disinformation? Algorithms? What do these terms mean and how can understanding these improve the quality of our screen time? This theatre in education programme helps children and parents to learn how to make the internet a safe and fun way to spend time. It explores how we all have a responsibility to be respectful and kind online and balance concerns about internet safety with having fun online.
